Bhutan – The Happiest Country In The World

- Will you be interested in living and working in Bhutan? why/why not?
- Think about differences between your country and Bhutan, Compare both countries.

The composite image includes a detailed map of Bhutan showing its location between China to the north and India to the south. Key locations marked on the map include Chimo Lhari (23,997 ft), Kula Kangri (24,783 ft), and various towns like Thimphu, Paro, and Punakha. To the right is a photograph of a traditional Bhutanese monastery built into a cliffside. Below the map is a photograph of four children in traditional Bhutanese clothing. To the right of the children is a photograph of a man and a woman in traditional Bhutanese attire. At the bottom center is a map of South Asia with Bhutan circled in green. A DK logo is visible at the bottom right of the South Asian map.

Although Bhutan may not be one of the richest countries in the world, it is officially one of the happiest. The government of Bhutan believes in promoting the nation's 'gross national happiness' (GNH).

Bhutan is an isolated country and its airport, Paro, is one of the most spectacular but also one of the scariest airports in the world to land in. The route through the mountains is very difficult to navigate and only ten pilots know how to!
